

Getting Involved with Your School and Other Parents and Caregivers

There are many ways for parents and caregivers to get involved with their school. You can help improve school services for your child and the other school children.

How can I help at my child's school?

- Join your school parent/teacher group. These groups are called PTAs or PTOs.
- Your school district may have an employee that works with parents to help the school improve. Ask your school about their Parent Involvement Coordinator or Parent Liaison.
- For Atlanta Public Schools, contact the Office of Family Engagement at (404) 802-2802. For other districts, ask your school principal for contact information.

How can I connect with other caregivers?

- Call the Georgia Parent Support Network at (844) 278-6945 or visit their website at www.gpsn.org. They connect parents and caregivers to help children with behavior challenges.
- Visit www.parentmentors.org to find out ways to connect with other parents and caregivers.

Where can I find more information for caregivers?

- Grandparents should also visit grandfamilies.org for a list of supports and services for grandparents.
- Foster and adoptive parents can find help at the Georgia Center for Resources and Support. Call them at (866) A-Parent or visit them at www.GACRS.org.
